By Your Congressman
CHARLES J. COLDEN

After groping around for nearly two weeks, the House rallied from its daze and has passed a bill extending the National Industrial Recovery Act to April 1st, 1936, but it is a far different bill than the one originally passed. All the provisions giving the President power to establish and enforce codes have been repealed.

Under the new act the industries may, of their own choosing, form an agreement concerning prices, wages, hours, which the President may approve, but with practically no power to enforce such agreements. The supreme court did such a good job of wrecking the former N. I. R. A. that there is but little left. The N. I. R. A. will cease to function as in the past, but a skeleton of the original organization will be retained in order to gather statistics and review the workings of the N. I. R. A. for a purpose of a survey of the good and the bad in the former bill and also to lay a foundation for future legislation. One of the chief themes of the minority side from the beginning. When the Democratic members of the committee on ways and means reported out a resolution for the continuation, for a period of about nine months, of what is left of the N. I. R. A., it was most noticeable that the Republicans on the ways and means committee made a minority report, which, among other things, stated the following:

"The minority feel that in spite of its many faults, the N. I. R. A. has a number of beneficial and commendable features, which might well be preserved by permanent legislation within the constitutional limitations."

Among the number of beneficial and commendable features the minority report mentions:

- 1—Provision against unfair methods of competition.
- 2—Unfair and destructive trade practices.
- 3—Monopolies and monopolistic tendencies.
- 4—Employment of child labor.
- 5—Provisions for maximum hours of employment.
- 6—Minimum rates of pay.
- 7—The guarantee to employees of the right to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing.

So, when you can get the minority to turn a somersault like that, and point out all these good features, you may be sure that its most carping critics have found some good in the much criticized N. I. R. A. It's the old story, you never know how good a man may be, until his funeral is preached.

Congress is swaying between two ideas. One is the old states

FIFTY YEARS FROM NOW

By GEORGE H. SAPP

When I got up this morning
I felt so very blue
For I've worried over the depression
'Til I don't know what to do.

For when I go out walking
And a friend I chance to meet
We straightway go to talking,
Of what we're going to eat.
Oh! the situation's shocking,
And I know it can't be beat,
For we're all afraid, we'll starve to death,
With more than we can eat.

Now our President is speechless,
And he don't know what to say,
For his plans have all been upset,
Since they knocked his N. R. A.
The situation is very bad,
And it grows worse, day by day,
For we put our trust in Roosevelt,
He said he'd lead the way.

But in 50 years from now
Everything will be O. K.
For the courts will reconsider,
And resume the N. R. A.
And when that pleasant day arrives,
How happy we will feel,
And if F. D. R. is still on deck,
Then, we'll have a brand new deal.

Oh! in 50 years from now
Everything will be O. K.
Everyone will have a job,
But here I wish to say,
That none of us will be here then,
But our children's children will,
For we'll all be safely sleeping,
Out on the marble hill.

We'll be out in the marble orchard,
Where the flowers are in bloom,
For underneath the grass roots,
There's always lots of room.

California occupies a unique position among the 48 states. California is one of the great gold producing states of the Union, free from competition for the reason there is a constant demand for gold that has never been satisfied. Because of climatic conditions, the moving picture industry occupies a different position from many of the competitive industries of the country. The fruits, wine, winter vegetables and nuts of California are in a class by themselves and free from wholesale competition. Even the cotton is a superior quality and is not in the same class of competition as that of the competing southern states. Probably the petroleum industry suffers more from competition than any other important industry of the state.

Because of the necessity of irrigation, the need of electric power and the difficulties of securing a sufficient supply of water for domestic purposes, and for the further reason that the shipment of our surplus to far away markets requires marketing agree-

On a Bicycle Built for 2

This water bicycle, invented and built by Dr. William J. Jones, Seattle, shown on it with Miss Bette Mayer, was built out of scrap material at a cost of $15. It has a speed of about five miles an hour, more or less. Despite appearances, he says it is safe and can't capsize.

ments, there is a tendency to encourage collective thought and co-operative action in the state of California, that is absent in most of the other states of the Union.

This necessity of co-operation is developing in California an advanced state of mind on social justice and economic reform. In other words, the average citizen in California, if he lives in the rural section, is faced with the necessity of co-operation in securing water and power and in marketing his product. If he lives in a city in California, he is faced with problems of a similar nature.

For example: Los Angeles was forced to resort to public ownership to secure a sufficient supply of water. This step was logically followed by the development of municipal light and power. In order to reach the markets of the world, a municipal harbor was developed by Los Angeles.

A number of the members of Congress throw up their hands at any idea that suggests an amendment to the constitution. These constitutionalists are always ready to jump up and denounce the tinkering with the fundamental law of this country. I do not share that feeling myself for the reason that our forefathers provided means for the amendment of the constitution. Not only did they point out a method of amending the constitution, but they further, were parties to the submission of a number of amendments that followed the constitution. The first ten amendments were submitted by the first Congress of the United States when the constitution was fresh from the minds of the framers.

Nobody doubts the wisdom of the framers of the constitution of the United States, but even the far sight of Washington and Jefferson was not of such scope as to see what would happen in these United States in 150 years. Our forefathers lived in the sail and paddle boat, the horse-back and stage-coach age. The horse and buggy was a luxury. Without doubt, our forefathers saw the necessity of making the constitution of the United States subject to amendment, in order that it might be made sufficiently flexible to meet the future needs of the country. One of the wisest provisions of the constitution is that it affords a method of amendment.

One of the occasional criticisms of the members of the House and

OUR FOURTH ANNUAL SPRING LAMB SALE

In 1932, Western sheepmen asked our help in marketing their lambs. Our first Lamb Week was the result. The sheepmen received a fair price. Housewives, profiting from the real bargains thus offered, bought a half million pounds of lamb from us in that week.

This began our famous producer-consumer campaigns now so popular with both producer and consumer. They bring about distribution without waste of either time or money. The spring lamb we've purchased for this fourth annual producer-consumer lamb campaign is expertly selected for tenderness. Young, sweet-flavored, juicy meat. Easy to cook; easy to carve; and very easy to eat.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday features in Safeway operated markets.
